AMBE NALI GHAT - BHIMASHANKAR - VAJANTRI GHAT | TREK

A beautiful and thrilling route to the dev bhimashankar via Ambenali Ghat. Most of you must be interested and willing to know about this exploration. Come and join us for this adventurous trek. Climb through nali between big walls, make your way to the top through big boulders (3392 feet). The trek begins from the base village Jamrung. The village itself is surrounded by the lush green walls of sahyadri range.

Bhimashankar is one of the 12 Jyotirlingas of India, a pilgrimage place approximately 3500 feet high up in the hills. The area around Bhimashankar is covered with thick dense jungle. The Maharashtra Government has also declared it a Wildlife Sanctuary. The sanctuary is small (only about 100 sq. km's), but it is home to a wide variety of animals Leopard, Sambar, Barking deer, Porcupines, Grey Junglefowls, Wild pig, Hanuman langur, Rhesus macaque and Flying Squirrel etc. The sanctuary is famous as the home of a highly endangered subspecies of the Indian Giant Squirrel – Shekharu (Ratufaindicaphistoni), which is also the state animal of Maharashtra.
